

About Us

Wired Magazine Search

SUBSCRIBE

- New - Special Offer!
Give Wired
Renew
Reprints
Customer Service

BROWSE ARCHIVE

Issue-Date dropdown menu with GO button

GET OUR NEWSLETTER

enter email OK button

FIND A BOOK

- Aliens/UFOs
Computer Games
Computer Ref.
Cyberculture

Powered by barnesandnoble.com

WIRED INDEX

- Introduction
Live Quotes
View The Prospectus

ADVERTISE

- Contact Information
General Ads
Market Display Ads
Market Line Ads

ADLINKS

HOTWIRED

- Frontdoor
Wired News
Webmonkey
RGB Gallery
Animation Express
Webmonkey Guides

HOTBOT

Search

Striking a Nerve

By Marc Spiegler

Though still a UC Berkeley undergrad, lit major Adrian Tomine has rocketed to prominence among America's young cartoonists with his Optic Nerve comic book series.

In 32 Stories - a compilation of the cartoonist's minicomics - you experience the evolutionary arc of Tomine's style. His art progresses from mucky, crude line drawings to deftly rendered character sketches.

32 Stories, by Adrian Tomine: US$9.95. Drawn & Quarterly Publications: +1 (514) 279 2221.

Printing? Use this version

- STREET CRED
Striking a Nerve
The End of Science
The Joy of Chaos
Let Your Fingers Do the Web Walking
This Space for Rent
Mech Animal
A Forward Look at History
Chinese Son
InfoGenie
Painting with Music
Art and Invention
Salt-Water Rivers
Keko Mask
Blackjack for Serious Players
The Big Sleep
Drag Queen
Watch Your Back
Paintastic!
The City of Lost Dreams
Cred Contributors

Send us feedback

Copyright © 1994-2001 Wired Digital, Inc. All rights reserved.